Dear Hiring Committee,

I am writing to express my interest in the Chief Commercial Officer opportunity. With more than 30 years of experience across technology, consumer electronics, startups, and consulting, I have built my career around a simple objective: helping companies identify meaningful growth opportunities and turn them into revenue, stronger market positions, and sustainable commercial momentum.

Throughout my career, I have led sales and business-development initiatives, developed go-to-market strategies, expanded distribution networks, commercialized technology products, and built relationships with enterprise customers, retailers, distributors, and strategic partners. Through Jess Associates, I have advised and supported more than 20 startup and emerging organizations, contributing to approximately $100M–$150M in cumulative revenue growth through market expansion, commercialization, distribution development, and strategic sales execution.

My experience aligns particularly well with the commercial leadership mandate of this opportunity. At iPowerUp, I have led commercial strategy for a technology startup undergoing repositioning and growth, developing national sales strategies across retail, telecommunications, military, specialty, and enterprise channels while guiding commercialization and product-launch planning. Earlier in my career, I helped drive significant revenue growth at Toshiba America, Star Micronics, and Fujitsu America by developing enterprise relationships, expanding distribution channels, and bringing innovative technology products into new markets.

What I would bring to this CCO role is a combination of strategic commercial thinking and hands-on execution. I understand how to work with founders and senior leadership to define where growth should come from, develop the market strategy to pursue it, build the relationships and sales infrastructure necessary to support it, and keep the organization focused on measurable outcomes. I have also built and developed sales teams and understand the importance of aligning people, channels, customers, and commercial priorities around a common growth strategy.

While my career h as been rooted primarily in technology and consumer electronics rather than hospitality or fintech, I view my strength as the ability to build commercial engines and enter new markets, not simply operate within one industry category. The opportunity to apply that experience within a growing hospitality technology and payments environment is compelling. I would bring a proven record of commercial leadership while approaching the industry with the curiosity, discipline, and customer focus required to learn the market and create meaningful value.

I would welcome the opportunity to bring my experience in revenue growth, go-to-market strategy, enterprise sales, strategic partnerships, market expansion, commercialization, and startup growth to an organization entering an important stage of scale. I am particularly drawn to the opportunity to work alongside the CEO and Board in shaping commercial strategy and building the foundation for sustained growth.

Thank you for considering my candidacy. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my background, leadership approach, and commercial experience could contribute to the company's next stage of growth.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey Sobel
